

Some help with volume issues:

If you're watching from a computer there are likely multiple volume controls. If any one of these is turned low, it will be hard to hear.

- One might be a physical knob on your speakers.
- A second one in the lower right of your screen that looks like a little speaker.
- A third one visible in the actual video.

The image shows a screenshot of a Facebook live video player. The video content shows a church service with two men seated at a pulpit. The video player interface includes a progress bar at the bottom, a volume icon, and a 'Share' button. A red arrow points to the volume icon. To the right of the video player is the Facebook interface, showing the video title 'St. Paul's UCC was live.', engagement statistics (233 People Reached, 227 Engagements), and a list of comments. A second red arrow points to the 'Write a comment...' text box at the bottom of the comment section. The browser address bar shows the URL: <https://www.facebook.com/116154161794045/videos/525840878130951/>. The system tray at the bottom shows the time as 7:26 AM on 03/22/2020.
